MANY ARRESTS INTENDED

THE COERCION LAW TO BE VIGOROUSLY

An Impression Prevalent That the Arrest of John Dillon is Imminent-Chamberlain Not to be Appointed Governor General of Canada.

LONDON, Jan. 25 .- It is rumored to-night that several warrants besides those against . Tanner and Mr. Pyne bave been issued for the arrest of Irish members of the house of commons in England. Mr. Dillon's challenge to the government, in his speech at Cambridge last evening, to arrest him for language used in a public speech in England has been noted by the authorities, and the general opinion is that his arrest is imminent. Having gone so far in its attempt to make the coercion act operative in Great Britain the government will acarcely permit this piece of definance to pass unnoticed, especially as M. Dilion is foremost among the men for whose arrest warrants were issued in Ireland some time ago. The cabinet council was in session two hours and a half this afternoon, all the members being present except Mr. Balfour, Lord Ashbourne, and Mr. Matthews. The subjects under discussion were, it is understood, the arrest of Mr. Cox in London and the advisability of arresting such other offending Irish members as may be found in England upon that precedent, and the new and amended rules of procedure to be considered and adopted at the coming session of parliament.

The smilversary of the death of Gen. Gordon, which will occur to-morrow, will be appropriately observed by the friends of that officer. The St. James Gazette, in a leader calling attention to the fact and eulogizing the dead here of Khartoum, condemss Mr. Gladstone as being responsible for Gordon's death.

"We are not superstitious," it says, "but we are yet constrained to declare the perfectly plain truth that the beginning of Mr. Gladstone's downward career was coincident with the murder of Gen. Gordon."

Lord Charles Beresford explained that he resigned the office of a junior lord of the admiralty because the interests of a military and naval service had been subordinated to political exigencies. His statement was greeted with enthusiastic applause.

Lord Charles Beresford said the reason for his leaving the government had nothing to do with the general policy of the conservative party. It was a question regarding the defenses of the country. Anybody who knew anything regarding British fortifications concurred with him in the opinion that they were inadequate. It was better, he declared, to have no guns in their forts than to have those of ancient pattern.

> Contemplated Changes in the Catholic Church in the United States-Bishop Ireland to Be Made an Archbishon-The New Bishop for Richmond.

Rome, Jan. 25 .- A number of important changes in connection with the government of the Catholic Church in the United States are contemplated. Though nothing has been formulated yet, it is agreed upon in ecclesiastical circles that Archbishop Williams, of Boston, will be made a cardinal at a consistory in March. A strong flavor of truth is given this belief by the fact that the Rev. Dr. Bodfish, chancellor of the Bos-ton archdiocese and an intimate friend of the archbishop, is quoted as saying he will be in Rome this month. It is thought his errand will be to take from the pope an indirect offer of the honor to the arch Miner." His very important that the public should know this last fact; at least, one would think so from the conspicuous way in which Mr. Miner himself has it announced. Mrs. Potter will probably be very cordially received here. The people of Richmond are very fond of beauty and fine clothes, to say nothing of anything that smacks of society. It is the impression here that Mrs. Potter is a very bad actress, but that she is pretty, knows how to dress well, and that she has good social connections. She is not so bad an actress as she is reported to be here, but they have the correct estimate of her merits as an artist in the matter of personal attire. Mrs. Potter has better ideas of dress than any woman who has appeared on the stage in either Europe or America during this generation. Her costumes all have an individuality that arises from her own artistic taste. She will no doubt be greeted at Mozart Hall to-morrow evening by one of the most superb audiences ever seen in Richmond.

Col. Robert Beverly, whose stalwart form has been seen here a good deal this winter, is put down as a certain candidate for the governorship of Virginia. He sitter, is put down as a certain candidate for the povernorship of Virginia. He state. He seems to be preparing to make the race for the Democratic nomination as a distinctive farmers' candidate, and, like most candidates who rely on one element of airength, will probably be successful. One of the papers here recently published a long "open" letter from Col. Beverly to a member of the bouse of delegates on the crying needs of certain legislation for the farmers. After reading the letter one could bardly appreciate the necessity of its publication, unless it was to assist Col. Beverly in his personal ambition, for it was full of the tricks of s cheap demagogue. Col. Beverly would have the farmers of the bade rise up on myse and crush all the railroad interests at a single fell blow. What a God send the railroads are to people who wish to appeal to the ignorant prejudices of the peop bishop. Since the last visit of Cardinal Gibbons the pope has been highly impressed with the elever management of the American church, its growth and importance, and is anxious further to promote its welfare by giving it another papal prince. In that case, the gossip is, the new cardinal can have the arsistance of a coadlutor, if he wishes it, who will be Bishop McMahon, of Hartford, Conn., whose place will be filled by the conscration of Rov. Dr. Byrne, vicar general of Boston. Dr. Byrne is in Rome at present.

The vacant archbishopric of New Orleans is set down generally to flev. P. L. Chappelle, of St. Matthew's Church, Washington, D. C., an eloquent preacher, and altogether one of the ablest Catholic divines in the United States, though a few think Bishop Janssens, of Natchez, may be the one promoted. Bishop freland, of St. Paul, will be an archbishop much sooner than was expected. Before the end of soring the pope will decree a division of the archdocere of Milwaukee, which has grown almost too large for one prelate to govern, and erect a division of it into an archbishopric, at the head of which Bishop Ireland will go. As soon as the resignation of Bishop Keane, of Richmond, which is now in the vatican, is accepted, to allow him officially to assume his daties as rector of the proposed American University. Rev. Dr. O'Connell, rector of the American College in this city, will be made his successor. Dr. O'Connell is at present secretary at Rome for the American bishops. It is through him the principal part of the work relating to the government of the church in the United States. Strange story with the executive management of the college, has so overwhelmed him with work that it is intended to relieve him of the secretaryship and transfer its cares to Rev. Dr. Farrelly, of New York, who has taken up his quarters at the American hierarchy. The pope has said that, in making promotions in that direction, he will not recognize, even if accompanied by the strongest of recommendations, any claims for appointment ignorant prejudices of the people. If Virginia had more rairroads and fewer farmers of the non progressive type of Col. Beverly she would fare better.

Maj. Henry Reston, of Loudoun, made a most amusing speech in the senate yesterday on the abolition of itinerant peddlers. He carried the bill which he spoke in favor of, and after this the wandering peddler will have to pay a very heavy tax before he can ply his trade in Virginia. Senator lieaton speaks very often, but always entertainingly. His humor is of that dry, oral order that comes without any effort. In fact, the senator could not very well make a speech on any subject without saying something to excite the laughter of his hearers. He is not only the humorist of the senate, but he is the most active man in that body, and his services are of the greatest value to the state. His views of public questions are broad and generous, and as a legislator he is thoroughly abreast with the times.

It is believed, however, that the new bill, by the more explicit manuor in which its purpose is stated, obviates the principal objections raised in the President's veto. The bill has the unanimous indorsement of the pensions committee.

They showed that even New York police justices received a greater compensation than United States judges located in New York, and the salaries of United States judges focated in the case of salaries of United States judges focated in Chicago, and incidentally stated that one of the judges was forced to live outside the city and travel seventy miles a day to discharge his judgicial duties, because he was unable to meet the expense of living in a suitable manner in Chicago.

They said, in substance, that it is well known that incompetent men are now employed by many railroads as conductors, and they cited recent accidents, resulting in great loss of life and property, which were attributable to the inefficiency of the men employed as conductors. Their purpose in trying to secure the exclusion of inexperienced or incorpotent persons, they said, was of course to make a better market for the services of competent men, but this was not to be brought about by strikes. The rules of the order forbade strikes, and required the expulsion of any member. The bill moreover provided for the revocation of ilcenses of such as engaged in strikes. A large number of gentlemen interested in the manufacture of lard and its initiations, appeared before the Senata committee on agriculture yesterlay in reference to the bill to require lard compounds to be taxed, inspected, and stamped, and their makers to be licensed. The compound makers, through their representatives, acknowledged they used cotton seed oil and other wholesome articles to mix with pure lard, and opposed the bill because their product was a good and bealthful one, and as such should be encouraged. The consumers, they urge, were not making Jany complaint; this measure was prepared by business rivals, who were unable to campete successfully with them. Mr. W. W. Kumball, of Boston, the chief speaker for the bill, was questioned rather closely with regard to a statement that there were many unprincipled manufacturers in the country who were making deleterious lard compounds and selling them as pure lard. He could not give any names at once, but if the fate of the measure depended on it he promised to send the committee a hundred names of such manufacturers. The committee asked him to furnish the names of twenty such manufacturers, with the proof of their practices; and this Mr. Kimball premised to do, or to come and say to the committee he was all wrong.

which will be given at the New National Theater the week after next, two new operas will be heard here for the first time, which have excited unusual musical interest, and are unquestionably the most successful operatic productions of late years. These are "The Queen of Sheba," by Karl Goldmark, and "Nero," by the famous planist and composer, Anton Rubinstein. The "Queen of Sheba," was first produced is this country by the German Opera Company at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, two seasons ago, and has been one of the most successful and profitable of the productions by that company, and now for the third consecutive season it has a prominent place in the German opera rejectoric. Manager Looke added this work to the National Opera repertoire this season, a prominent place in the German opera reperiore. Manager Looke added this work to the National Opera reperiorire this season, producing it for the first time in the English language. The opera is strongly cast, with Bertha Pierson, the famous dramatic soprano; Amanda Fabris, Barton McGuckin, the English tenor: Alonzo Stoddard, and Frank Vetta in the cast.
The brilliant spectacles and rich tableaux in this production are elaborate and effective, the theme

The rich music of Rubinstein, with the dramatic and sensational incidents of the story of "Nero," and the wonderful stage speciacles, has made this the most brilliant and elaborate of modern operatic productions. This opera was originally produced in this country by the National Opera Company at an actual outlay of nearly $50,000. The great scene of the burning of Rome, which is said to be the most realistic fire scene ever produced in this country or in Europe, is one of the spectacular features of the production. Each of these operas will be produced in precisely the same elaborate manner as in New York. Eloi Sylva, the great dramatic tenor, will be heard in Washington for the first time, taking the part of Nero, which role he created in Italian in St. Petersburg under the direcn Italian'in St. Petersburg under the direc ion of the composer, Anton Rubinstein. Emma Juch will be heard as Chrysa, and ion of the composer, Anton Rubinstein. Emma Juch will be heard as Chrysa, and William Ludwig, the baritone; Clara Poole, the new contralto, and others are in the cast. There are two grand ballets in "Nero," in which Amelia Franchi, promier danseuse for the Theatre de la Mounale, Brussels, snd M. Cammarano, the wonderful male dancer, will appear with the new corps de ballet of forty dancers. The National Opera repertoire for the season here also includes the lirst performance here in English of Wagner's great opera, "Tannhauser," "Faust," "Lohengrin," "The Huguenots," &c. The season sale, giving choice of seats for all performances, opens at Metzerott's music store, No. 1963 Pennsylvania avenue, on Monday next at 9 a. m., and the sale of seats for single performances begins at the box office of the New National Theater on Monday, Feb. 2, at 9 a. m.

DEATH FROM SUICIDE.

Mussey, Dr. Huntimaton, and Mr. Morri-son took part in the discussion which fol-lowed. Senator Hawley soft a letter ex-pressing his regrets at not being able to be present.

CARDINAL GIBBONS TALKS

ABOUT THE PLANS AND MONEY FOR THE CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY.

Much Encouraged With the Prospects -Bishops Ireland and Keane Make Some Interesting Statements-Work on the Building Will Start in the Spring.

It was expected last night that Carroll institute would be crowded with Catholics interested in the establishment of the large church university in this city, and the room was not sufficiently large to accommodate il desirous of being present. At 8 o'clock the place was filled and a few minutes later Cardinal Gibbons, wearing a red cas sock, accompanied by Bishops Ireland-Keane, of Richmond, and Moore, of Florida, all in purple cassocks, took seats upon the platform. A large American flag was suspended on the wall in rear of the distinguished ciergy.

Fathers Chappelle. Donnelly, Hughes, Caughey of Laurel, Md.; McNalley, and Mackin. Cardinal Gilbbons offered prayer, after which he stated that the meeting was a preliminary one and hoped that all would be present at the meeting at Masonic Temple tonight. He then introduced Bishop Ireland, who was received, with rapturous applause. It was very plain that this well-known clergyman had the hearts and ears of the sudience with him. For forty minutes he held them close listeners by the cloquence flowing from his lips. He gave reasons for the establishment of the university here. It was to be made a bigh and great center of intellectual culture, and would begin with instruction, where it was left off at the college. There was to be nothing better in Europe or America in the way of a seat of learning, and those interested in the project had the confidence to say that after a few years there would be unterested in the project had the confidence to say that after a few years there would be nothing lacking to make it what its founders proposed it should be. He spoke of the age being great intellectually, and the church would be abreast of it. This institution was to train men to inquire deeply into the great questions of the day; to train the priest, the lawyer, the physician, the scientist into the deep intricacles of their respective callings. He paid a great tribute to the Hentiles, the freedom, and institutions of this country, and cited the affectionate words of Pope Leo XIII in receiving the Fresident's gift.

At great length he reviewed the work done by his church in the cause of education, in the founding of great universities, and alinded with pride to those of Biologna, Padua, Paris, Oxford, Cambridge, and to those in Germany. The history of the proposed university was, he said, inaugurated in the home of Rev. Dr. Chappelle, of St. Matthew's Church, this city. "I remember," said he, "that we were talking ab in which he said that the professors were to be men chosen for their great learning and fitness. They were to be men of great repute. The first work would be the establishment of the uvitaity school. This work would be begun at once, and the cornerstone of the building be haid in about three months, and the centennial anniversary of the establishment of the Catholic bierarchy of America would be celebrated in the autumn of 1883, and at the same time the beginning of the second century would be celebrated by the opening of the divinity department of the university, to be followed as rapidly by the departments of philosophy, law, medicine, &c.

was to be free to all. This would be a great monument to the Catholic Church. The sum of $1,000,000 was needed to begin with. So far the Catholics of the country have responded nobly. Chicago had given $50,000, and if the university had been $50,000. placed there a guarantee had been given that $500,000 would immediately be forthcoming. Other cities had responded nobly, and he hoped that Washington would do her share in the way of con-tributing. Hestated that during the week subscription books would be placed in proper hands, and a chance would be offered to all to subscribe. Bishop Keane was the next speaker. After thanking the audience for their presence on laced there a guarantee had been thanking the audience for their presence on so inclement a night he expressed his heart-felt gratitude that Carroll Institute had so inclement a night he expressed his heartfelt gratitude that Carroll institute had taken the initiative step. He then stated how grateful he felt at being made the rector of the great university. For a long time he logically discussed the errors that people had fallen into respecting the reasons for the establishment of the institution under Cathelic patronage. He denied that the church was the enemy to enlightenment and that her policy was to keep her children in ignorance and intellectual darkness. Such a course would be a mockery, God is a God of light, and His church to fail in shedding forth the true light would not be faithful to Him. The church's great idea was to guide her children into great intellectuality. The object of the church of God was to make the world worthy of the grand destiny of the future life. One of the saudest things in this world was that people have such a low look at things. The purpose of the church was to make people think and hink in their hearts. The church of God was always at work in the heart and in the mind. He wanted the institution to be the greatest in the world, because he loved his country, he loved its greatness, its liberty, its freedom, and the time had come when the old world was looking to this country because of its greatness. His licetry, its freedom, and the time had come when the old world was looking to this country freedom, and the time had come when the old world was looking to this country because of its greatness. He gave the reasons why the church wanted this institution under its care, and why she wanted it as a training school for her priesthood.

"Within two years the divinity chairs would be filled, after that we will add," said the bishop, "chair after chair. We mean business by it." Gifts in large sums had been asked for, but contributions in small amounts would be accepted as readily and as heartily. On conclusion of his address the meeting adjourned.

Happy Auspices.

At 6, o'clock last evening the Hebrew Synagogue, on Eighth street, was crowded with the friends of Mr. Edward Mayer and with the friends of Mr. Edward Mayer and Miss Mattle Blout to witness the ceremony that made them husband and wife. Rev. Dr. Stern officiated, and the organ selections were skillfully rendered by Prof. Jarvis flutler. The ushers were Messrs. M. Hamburger, I. W. Nordlinger, H. Weyl, S. C. Wallach, A. Herne, M. L. Rosenberg, M. Adler, M. S. Cahn of Baltimore, B. Obenderf, and J. Hofhelmer of Norfolk.

After the ceremony the party adjourned to Massonic Hall, and there, with music and dancing, was the event celebrated by about 400 ladies and gentlemen. Stein's orchestra was at its best, and terpsichorean evolutions were in order from 7 o'clock until midnight. Refreshments were liberally dispensed throughout the entire evening.

The happy couple left on the litib train for a tour in the north, New York, Buffalo, and Boston being the principal stopping places.

The National Riffes' Hall was crowded to excess last night with the shining lights of capital drawing rooms, and the scene presented to the onlooker was a beautiful ne. The spacious hall was elaborately decorated with dags of all nations and streamers of every line. Flowers and plants ornamented the stage, and against the somber background of huge green leaves the gay and glittering costumes spreared in pretty relief. Everybody appeared to be in the best of humor despite the crush, and the occasion was enjoyed to the utmost. The costumes were, in the majority of instances, simply exquisite, and were the subjects of innumerable complimentary remarks and admiring allusions. Viewed from the gallery, the floor was a truly magnificent sight. The brightest of costumes, relleved only by an occasional subdued dress or by the dress suits of the gantlemen, dazzled the eye, while diamonds sparkled from necklace and headdress until the vision became weary of the star-studied kaledoscore that moved ceaselessiy over the polished floor. Mingling with the crowd the scene was still more beautiful, for here could be seen, to advantage, the clear complexion, regular features, and bright eyes of the ladies, and here with them could be enjoyed the pleusure of maneuvering through the turicactes of the "mazy" to the strains of Strauss, Bacalossi, or Tobaul as rendered by Weber's orchestra.

The receiving committee consisted of Mrs. Stone, Mrs. L. Z. Leiter, Mrs. Franklyn, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. McGuire, Mrs. Gait, and Mrs. Hobson, and the company was presented to them by Mr. W. M. Gait in a manner that would havebeen creditable to the most suave courtier.
